Washington's Farewell Address Read.

Pneumatic Tube Knocked Out. House Passes Claim and Pension Bills.

BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—A wrong impression has gone abroad regarding the matter of selecting new army officers. It has been reported that some of the new appointments would be made from among volunteers, but he corrects this by saying that preference will be given first to volunteer officers now in the service, second to officers who served during the war with Spain, and third, to persons chosen from among volunteers.

impossible to say what conclusions were reached.

United States Ambassador Chester W. Nauvelot was summoned to the Foreign Office yesterday morning, where Lord Lansdowne is likely to communicate to him the British views regarding the Nicaragua Canal controversy. No expectation need be entertained that this interview will settle all difficulties other than the Nicaragua Canal.

Lord Pauncefote, at the request of Lord Lansdowne, sent the despatch which was discussed there. There is no record of it, but it reflected the decision previously announced by the Associated Press that the British Government had decided not to give in to the demands of the Senate without a quid pro quo.

NEW ARMY OFFICERS.

CIVILIANS' LAST CHANCE.

BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—(Exclusive Dispatch.) Adjt.-Gen. Corbin says a wrong impression has gone abroad regarding the matter of selecting new army officers. It has been reported that some of the new appointments would be made from among volunteers, but he corrects this by saying that preference will be given first to volunteer officers now in the service, second to officers who served during the war with Spain, and third, to persons chosen from among volunteers.

Corbin added that so great had been the number of applications from officers of the first and second classes that he doubted whether any persons would be appointed from civil life. This notice was given to Representatives on that specific point. The applications have been made from civilians in California, who are sure to be disappointed.

SEATTLE (Wash.) Feb. 22.—(Exclusive Dispatch.)

Report from Capt. Cantwell of the United States revenue cutter Nunivak, which left St. Michael late last fall for winter quarters on the Dall River, just below the Arctic Circle, tell of the awful condition of the Indians on the Lower Yukon and the distress on the Koyuk River.

The extent of the suffering among the natives cannot be described," says the report. "It is simply appalling. Without food during the summer the natives cannot, and twenty-nine claims have been filed for relief.

Among them was the Senate bill to pension the widow of the late Gen. Henry W. Lawton. As the bill passed the Senate, however, $100,000 less than the House cut the amount down to $50.

MINORITY REPORT FILED ON RESOLUTION TO PROCEED WITH WORK REGARDLESS OF THE CLAYTON-BULWER AGREEMENT—TERMS WITH NICARAGUA AND COSTA RICA.

BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Senator Morgan of the Committee on Foreign Relations has made a minority report upon the resolution declaring that the ratification of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty is not a condition precedent to the construction of the Nicaragua Canal, and that the United States should proceed with the work regardless of the existence of the Clayton-Bulwer agreement. The committee made an adverse report upon the resolution a few days ago, and Senator Morgan contended that the views of this section of the Senate must be taken into account in the report made in the Senate. A vote was made to conform to the views of the President. On this point he says:

"The resolutions have my hearty approval and I cannot admit that the President has any right to direct Congress as to the time when it is expedient to execute his policy of his solemn and郑重的 promise of making these agreements with Nicaragua and Costa Rica."

"This claim was made in the committee and his views as to the expediency of action were stated as grounds of objection to the resolution. From this view of the duty of the Senate, I wholly dissent."

In another connection he says on the same point:

"We are bound to agree with Costa Rica and Nicaragua as to the terms on which canal privileges will be extended to the United States, if this subject is to be settled by agreement."

"It is not clear, however, whether in a spasm of apprehension or under a subordination to the opinions of that Bulwer opinion may interfere with the will of the government to compel the President to abandon these agreements. They are sound, just, lawful and inexpensive, valuable, and if they are abandoned, we cannot expect a peaceful resumption of them."

Morgan takes the position that the President has already outlined the position of the United States toward the Clayton-Bulwer treaty by indicating the protocols with Costa Rica and Nicaragua.

"It is quite as clear," he says, "that the President is making these agreements as far as possible."

The President has already indicated his desire that Great Britain could assert its right to the effect that his consent was necessary to the transfer of the rights of Congress to disregard any claims of Great Britain to prevent the United States from using the waters of Costa Rica and Nicaragua and to appropriate money for that distinct purpose.

"My question, however, is this: Has he bound himself as President to a plenipotentiary to these agreements, or if they violate the right of Great Britain to give her just offense, Congress is to be called upon to overrule and stonewall for it an unpopular and impeachable act."

CABINET DELIBERATIONS.

BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—In spite of the great secrecy which is usual with the deliberations of the Cabinet, the Associated Press is able to ascertain that one of the most important decisions made today was a dispatch from Lord Pauncefote, which it is understood, goes to the Foreign Office of the United States toward Great Britain concerning the Clayton-Bulwer treaty. As the official action resulting from today's meeting has not yet had time to take definite shape, it is

DEAD MAN HAD BEEN SUMMONED AS A WITNESS IN NEW YORK MURDER TRIAL.

BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—A murderer, believed to have been the result of a vendetta, was committed near Glenview, Illinois, this city, late last night. Salvatore Giovanni was found shot through the heart, with Carlo Battista, who recently arrived from New York, standing over him. Battista says he and the murdered man were warm friends and that while on the way Giovanni's home town was visited by them. Battista was not injured, but carried a revolver which had not been fired. In the dead man's coat pocket, however, was a revolver from which three shots had been fired. This mystifies the police, since Giovanni's revolver would have prevented his friend from being killed in a place of concealment. In his pockets were many counterfeit coins. Giovanni, one of the most prominent Italians in Chicago, was a member of several secret societies and came here from New York seven years ago.

The police are of the belief that he was the victim of the dreaded Mafia and hold that he was murdered with the weapon found on him. Battista is being held pending an investigation.

Within five hours after the murder, the police raided a house at No. 100 of Milwaukee avenue and arrested nine Italians said to be sympathizers of the Chicago branch of the Mafia society. The persons arrested are Donato Lanza, Salvatore Pellegrino, Litta, Capitano Maka, Natafiki Eka, John Roni, Simon Rafael, Tom Sparro and Joseph Marzo. One of the men was arrested on a charge of having stolen $100.

NOT WIRE TO THE TIMES
SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The death of Matthew J. Walsh, United States senator at the near end of his life, has been a novel rather than a real life. In the middle being short of food, Fox started for the warehouses where Syndicate, seven miles away. They did not realize he had to travel through deep snow. Fox broke his leg in the stream and was severely maimed. He told his wife he would never again see her. She died in the morning and the absence of her husband.

Another curious celebration was that of the Old Settlers' Association at Campion, held by 100 people from San Joaquin county. The chief address was made by President Michael Clash of the University of the Pacific.

At the East, the principal celebrations were at Chicago and Detroit. At the latter place the Michigan Club to-night was addressed by Postmaster-General Smith.

ANOTHER CURIOUS CELEBRATION.

CHICAGO CELEBRATION.

NOTABLE ADDRESSES MADE.

DETROIT (Mich.) Feb. 22.—In accordance with a time-honored custom, Washington's birthday was commemorated by the Union League Club today by two events in the Auditorium. The Marquette Club also gave a dinner during the evening.

Bishop Spaulding delivered an eloquent address on "Patience and Goodwill."

"The characteristics of a true American are good-will, sympathy with the helpless and oppressed, ingenuity, unselfish energy, courage, frankness, and the desire to make his country and to make it permanent," he said.

THE DEATH OF A FINE OLD MAN.

DETROIT (Mich.) Feb. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A sensation from the city was the sudden death of Mrs. W. C. Van Fleet, Mrs. George Van Fleet, Mrs. Samuel Buckley and Mr. Robert McCreary. The deceased was a fine Pennsylvanian, and came to California in the early fifties.

DR. PIERO B. FAGAN.

SANTA CRUZ, Feb. 22.—Dr. Piero B. Fagan, a well-known citizen, died last night. He was a native of Ohio, and had been a member of the Board of Education for many years and president of the Bank of Santa Cruz, and the Savings and Loan Association. Before coming to California in 1864, he laid out the city of Denver, Iowa, in 1864.

JUDGE MICHAEL COONEY.

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 22.—Judge Michael Cooney of San Francisco, who was found dead in his room at the Golden Eagle Hotel in the city a few days ago, died this afternoon. Cooney had evidently turned "a gas" to Sacramento to look after his isolation in relation to the San Francisco Normal School, of which he was one of the directors.

The Rio de Janeiro was three days away from Honolulu via Honolulu, when she arrived off the hands last night. The density of the fog prevailing at the time induced Pilot Jordan to bring her anchor until he could see his way clear through the fog. It was not until about 4:30 o'clock in the morning, when the atmosphere cleared, and she was under a slow heel toward Point Bonita. All went well until 5:49 o'clock, when she struck. Most of the passengers were below at the time, and it is believed that many of them were drowned in their berths.

The first news of the disaster reached here at 7:30 o'clock this morning, and soon afterward a boatload of rescued passengers and petty officers arrived at the main dock. Tugs were immediately dispatched to render any service that might be needed, but no living persons were about when they reached the wreck. A number of drowning people were rescued by Italian fishermen, and the bodies of two white men, three Chinese and a Japanese were brought in by the tugs. The search for more of the victims has continued all day.

From all accounts it appears that the officers were cool and gave the necessary orders with the least excitement.

Indeed, Capt. Ward, who was on the deck when the vessel struck, at once gave orders to the crew to hasten to hustle the passengers onto the forward deck. At the same time the quartermaster on duty pounded the signal for fire drill, and within five minutes all the men were at their stations. There was no time of telling the extent of the damage to the vessel, and the crew ran on an even keel for fifteen minutes after striking the rock. But Capt. Ward, with the instinct of an experienced sailor, knew that the greatest danger was ahead, so he sent his helmsman, his charge, and, pacing the deck, gave orders to lower away the lifeboats and life rafts.

There was not much confusion, until fifteen minutes after striking, the bow of the vessel suddenly plunged under water. Then there was a wild rush for the boats. Some were lowered, and others were getting away as rapidly as the trained discipline of the crew could prepare them.

A thick fog enveloped everything, and as yet no sign had come from the life-saving station. Darkness was all about, and with this added horror the people on the Rio had to cope.

ONE BOAT CLEAR.

One boat got clear of the vessel without damage. This contained the following persons:

MRS. K. WEST,

MRS. RIPLEY,

CHIEF ENGINEER P. H. HERLIHAN,

SECOND OFFICER COGHLAN,

FRANK CRAMP, carpenter.

J. RUSSELL,

STOREKEEPER BORG,

WATER TENDER D. LANE,

QUARTERMASTER R. MATHIEU.

CAPT. HECHT of the German navy.

This boat got clear of the sinking vessel, and then stood by to help in picking up those who had not time to get into the boats and were in the water.

BOAT CUT IN TWO.

Another boat, containing Third Officer Holland and J. K. Carpenter, the Oakland capitalist, got away, but drifted around and came up with the sinking vessel.

As the forward end of the vessel plunged downward, the prow caught the small boat and cut it in two. The two men in the boat were uninjured and swam away from the sinking steamer just in time to be picked up by the crew of the big ship.

Capt. Ward was picked up by the other boat.

The fate of Holland is not known, but it is supposed he perished.

A number of Italian fishermen who were just starting out this morning saw the sinking of the Rio, and at once hastened to render every assistance in their power.

CAPT. WARD.

While this was going on, Capt. Ward was directing the passengers and trying to keep them from panic. He succeeded only partly, as many of the terrified persons rushed to the railings and jumped overboard. Some of these were picked up, others drowned.

The sinking grew, to the number of one hundred, were terrorized. Some of them huddled in little groups, chattering in fear. Others crouched close to the deck, moaning pitifully. Many jumped into the sea.

Capt. Ward stayed on the deck until the vessel had settled to such an extent that the water was engulfing him.

Then he went up on the bridge, and from there down to the deck, directing the passengers, although by this time the confusion was so great that few paid any attention to his commands.

HEAD WAR SERVICE.

[The Rio was used as a government transport in the early months of the war with Spain, carrying troops between San Francisco and Manilla. She was built in 1898, carrying two battalions of the First South Dakota. Later he was transferred to the Peru, then to the China, then to the City of Peking. He was then placed in charge of the Rio de Janeiro again, and had been three years and a half on the ship when the disaster of today occurred. The captain was 38 years of age, and a native of Raleigh, N.C. He leaves a sister and two brothers, who are residents of Raleigh.

Shortly after the shock the four big boats in the davits were lowered. A large number of passengers, hastily summoned from their rooms by the crew, were thrown overboard.

Some of them were drowned.

The captain was 38 years of age, and a native of Raleigh, N.C. He was then placed in charge of the Rio de Janeiro again, and had been three years and a half on the ship when the disaster of today occurred. The captain was 38 years of age, and a native of Raleigh, N.C. He leaves a sister and two brothers, who are residents of Raleigh.

There are several conflicting stories concerning the fate of Capt. Ward. The steward of the Rio says that he stood beside the captain when the vessel went down. Two other survivors say that they also saw the captain, but Frederick Lindstrom, the quartermaster officer of the Rio, emphatically declared that Capt. Ward had followed the orders of the Queen's Royal Yacht Her Majesty's Ship Victoria in going down to his cabin, where he met his doom behind a solid door.

Quartermaster Officer Lindstrom was one of the first to land at Meiggs' Wharf this morning, and one of the first stories he made was that Capt. Ward had gone down with the captain, but Frederick Lindstrom, the quartermaster officer of the Rio, emphatically declared that Capt. Ward had followed the orders of the Queen's Royal Yacht Her Majesty's Ship Victoria in going down to his cabin, where he met his doom behind a solid door.

The Rio was a staunch old ship, and while under the command of Capt. Ward in the oriental trade, had passed through more than a dozen cyclones without serious harm or loss of life.

CAPAS KNUCKLED ABOUT.

PICKED UP BY RAFT.

William Casper of Toledo, O., was among the survivors who while the boy after was flung on the ladder, was picked up by a raft.

"Did you see Capt. Ward?"

"I saw nothing of him after we struck. I believe he is lost."

BRANDER'S ESCAPE.

WENT DOWN IN THE LURK.

William Brander of the Brander & Co., London, one of the cabin passengers, was one of those rescued.

He was making a tour of the world, and boarded the Rio at Yokohama.

He carried a large amount of luggage which was lost.

When he reached the port of Callao, he was taken to the Hospital.

He was standing on the deck when the vessel was struck.

"I was ashore when the accident happened. I was awakened by a series of jars and scrapings, and as I awoke I heard the screaming of women in the bay after we were flung on the ladder," he said.

"I ordered that when the weather cleared we should go farther in. At 5 a.m. the fog lifted. We could see the Cliff House and the north shore of the city. We had made good progress.

After we started hearing short, sharp bangs from the northeast, and the wind grew in thickness, and I told the mate to stop the engines. Then Capt. Ward, after consulting with Pilot Jordan, came down from the bridge. He was standing on the deck when the vessel was struck.

CORPORATION INSOLENCE AND CORPORATION TOOLS.

Considering the record which the present California Legislature has so far made for itself, there is, we suppose no special reason for surprise upon learning that the Senate, by a vote of 24 to 8, has passed up the Broughton street-railroad bill to the third reading, after which it will only need the signature of the Governor to become a law. Considering, however, that this bill has been strongly opposed by a large number of prominent citizens of this section whose intentions are above suspicion; considering the fact that members of both houses have been bombarded with letters and telegrams from prominent citizens of Los Angeles begging them not to pass this bill in its present form, pointing out how it is opposed to the interests of the public, and considering the record which it has been shown that the bill was introduced by Mr. Broughton on behalf of a railroad corporation, and that he himself was not even fully acquainted with the contents of this important measure, it might certainly have been expected that the members of the Senate would at least have made some show of paying deference to the wishes of those who elected them to office.

Such, however, was not the case. The railroad "push" won its fight "hands down." From the moment the bill came up on its second reading, there was never any doubt as to how a majority of the Senators stood. They even voted against the amendments which the committee itself proposed by a majority vote. Many of them did not take the trouble to follow the bill as the several amendments were read. They knew what was expected of them, and they did it like a lot of shameless tools of a selfish corporation, as a majority of them are. Senator Simpson, whose recent change of heart does not seem to have burdened him with any conscientious scruples in regard to his duties to his constituents, where the interests of a wealthy corporation are concerned, was an active advocate of the bill in its entirety, as he has been all along. Senator Taylor made a brave but hopeless fight against the bill, even when he saw that the action of the Senate was a foregone conclusion. For this he should not be forgotten. While criticizing and punishing the traitors, let us not forget to encourage and reward those who are faithful to their trust. Here are names of the twenty-four Senators who voted for the passage of the objectionable street-railroad bill. Let their names be remembered: Atkinson, Burnett, Byrnes, Corlett, Dettweiler, Goddard, Greenwell, Hoey, Hard, Leavitt, Maggard, Mueller, Nelson, Nutt, O'Neal, Pace, Plunkett, Rice, Shortridge, Simpson, Sims, Sowell of San Francisco and Welch. There is, we suppose, not the slightest doubt that the Governor will sign the bill, and that it will become a law, if not for the time being, at least the power of the Los Angeles Railways Company, and make impossible that they will not permit themselves to be dominated over by this any other presumptuous corporation in which, because it possesses much wealth, imagines that it can do as it sees. The corporation has thrown on the gauntlet. The citizens of Los Angeles take it up. From now on it is understood that the interests of the people of Los Angeles and the rest of the Los Angeles Railroad company are diametrically opposed, and that those who favor the one are enemies of the other. Every piece of legislation that is fathered by the rail-road company, whether before the City Council of Los Angeles or the State legislature at Sacramento, will be carefully watched and contested.

All such talk as this is worse than foolish. It is mischievous—vicious. There is positively not the least legitimate ground for hostility toward the United States on the part of the Cuban. On the contrary, the people have every reason for the profoundest gratitude toward the American government and the American people, whom the government represents. Instead of indulging in petty quibbling over the details of American-Cuban relations, the Cubans should be ready to say, in effect, to the Americans: "What do you want? Whatever you desire will be yours without a question. We owe more to you than we can ever hope to repay. You have only to make known to us the concessions which you desire, and we shall be more than glad to grant them, as a partial repayment of the great debt of gratitude which we owe to the Americans."

This ought to be the attitude and the sentiment of every inhabitant of Cuba toward the United States. No doubt it is the attitude and the sentiment of the better class of Cubans. The quibblers (we may at least assume) probably do not represent the real sentiment of the Cubans. This question, however, will be answered by the developments of the near future.

Any Cuban who pauses for a moment and considers the condition and prospects of his country three years ago, as compared to its present condition and prospects, must acknowledge that the change which has been accomplished has been as a change from abject despair to hope. The condition of these people was as nearly hopeless as could be imagined. They were under the weight of a despotism as oppressive as any despotic rule of the Middle Ages. They were slowly being exterminated by Weyler's diabolical system of concentration in the cities, where they were rapidly dying off from starvation and disease. If the United States had not espoused the cause of "Cuba Libre," there would not have been the slightest hope for that cause.

All that these people have today, therefore, they owe to the United States, which took up their desperate and hopeless cause, and made their vague dreams of liberty a living reality. It is with ill grace, under these circumstances, that the Cubans essay to split hairs with our government over the relations which are to subtlety between the two countries.

ENGLAND'S HEAVY STEEL IMPORTS.

The British customs authorities have issued a report showing the quantity of unwrought steel imported into the United Kingdom from foreign countries during the past three years. As the London Express points out, the report is likely to cause a feeling of uneasiness as to the future of the British steel trade. The figures, it must be confessed, are rather startling. For the year 1898 the imports of unwrought steel into the United Kingdom were 40,000 tons; for 1899 they were 77,000 tons, and for 1900 they amounted to an aggregate of 179,000 tons.

English steel manufacturers may well ask themselves where this sort of thing is going to end, and where their own industry will be in a few years if the increase continues. Inasmuch as other classes of imports are likewise increasing at a surprising rate, without a corresponding increase of exports, it is not to be wondered at that British economists are more or less alarmed, and are indulging in a great deal of comment and speculation as to the causes which lie back of the decline in British industrial supremacy.

It is of especial interest to note, in this connection, that the enormous increase in British imports of steel above mentioned was practically all from the United States. We sent to Great Britain last year 157,000 tons of steel, as compared to 59,000 tons in 1899. The exports from Belgium and Holland also showed an increase, but this was of little moment as compared to the increased imports from the United States.

The London Express says that the steel manufacturers of Sheffield attribute the growing use of American steel to the fact that "the high price of fuel makes it impossible for home producers to compete." They declare, further, that the British coal owners have pursued a selfish and shortsighted policy, and that trades-union interference has also hampered the British manufacturers and placed them at a disadvantage in competition with the Americans.

There is doubtless a great deal of truth in the last-named reason for British industrial decline, however true or false may be the other reasons assigned. Trades-union interference with the processes of production has become a much greater evil in Great Britain than it is in the United States. Organization has been carried farther there, and the trade aggregations wield greater power than they do here. These organizations have greatly interfered with British exports, by hampering production and by increasing its cost, thus making the British manufacturer less and less able to meet his competitors in the markets of the world. It is only a question of time, if this malign and hampering influence continues, when British industries will be ruined. No business, however extensive or prosperous, can survive the vicious meddling and the paralyzing despotism of trade-union bandits. In proportion as they gain control of an industry will such industry, as a general rule, decline.

QIBBLING CUBANS.

All at once some of the Cuban statesmen have developed a singular spirit of hostility, or seeming hostility, toward the United States. They are frequently quoted in dispatches as declaring what they will or will not do, as regards the relations between our country and Cuba; also as becoming "exasperated" at our reasonable desire for cooling stations and other concessions; and Cienfuegos, one of these ungrateful native patriots, was very recently quoted in a dispatch as referring in a prophetic mood to the time when Cubans would have to "fight the United States."

All such talk as this is worse than foolish. It is mischievous—vicious. There is positively not the least legitimate ground for hostility toward the United States on the part of the Cuban. On the contrary, the people have every reason for the profoundest gratitude toward the American government and the American people, whom the government represents. Instead of indulging in petty quibbling over the details of American-Cuban relations, the Cubans should be ready to say, in effect, to the Americans: "What do you want? Whatever you desire will be yours without a question. We owe more to you than we can ever hope to repay. You have only to make known to us the concessions which you desire, and we shall be more than glad to grant them, as a partial repayment of the great debt of gratitude which we owe to the Americans."

That promotion in the staff departments of the army is not so rapid as might be expected, as the case of John G. Butler of the ordnance department, just promoted to lieutenant colonel. He was graduated in 1885, and was advanced to the rank of lieutenant about seven years, a captain sixteen years and a major eleven years.

This ought to be the attitude and the sentiment of every inhabitant of Cuba toward the United States. No doubt it is the attitude and the sentiment of the better class of Cubans. The quibblers (we may at least assume) probably do not represent the real sentiment of the Cubans. This question, however, will be answered by the developments of the near future.

Any Cuban who pauses for a moment and considers the condition and prospects of his country three years ago, as compared to its present condition and prospects, must acknowledge that the change which has been accomplished has been as a change from abject despair to hope. The condition of these people was as nearly hopeless as could be imagined. They were under the weight of a despotism as oppressive as any despotic rule of the Middle Ages. They were slowly being exterminated by Weyler's diabolical system of concentration in the cities, where they were rapidly dying off from starvation and disease. If the United States had not espoused the cause of "Cuba Libre," there would not have been the slightest hope for that cause.

All that these people have today, therefore, they owe to the United States, which took up their desperate and hopeless cause, and made their vague dreams of liberty a living reality. It is with ill grace, under these circumstances, that the Cubans essay to split hairs with our government over the relations which are to subtlety between the two countries.

ENGLAND'S HEAVY STEEL IMPORTS.

The British customs authorities have issued a report showing the quantity of unwrought steel imported into the United Kingdom from foreign countries during the past three years. As the London Express points out, the report is likely to cause a feeling of uneasiness as to the future of the British steel trade. The figures, it must be confessed, are rather startling. For the year 1898 the imports of unwrought steel into the United Kingdom were 40,000 tons; for 1899 they were 77,000 tons, and for 1900 they amounted to an aggregate of 179,000 tons.

English steel manufacturers may well ask themselves where this sort of thing is going to end, and where their own industry will be in a few years if the increase continues. Inasmuch as other classes of imports are likewise increasing at a surprising rate, without a corresponding increase of exports, it is not to be wondered at that British economists are more or less alarmed, and are indulging in a great deal of comment and speculation as to the causes which lie back of the decline in British industrial supremacy.

It is of especial interest to note, in this connection, that the enormous increase in British imports of steel above mentioned was practically all from the United States. We sent to Great Britain last year 157,000 tons of steel, as compared to 59,000 tons in 1899. The exports from Belgium and Holland also showed an increase, but this was of little moment as compared to the increased imports from the United States.

The London Express says that the steel manufacturers of Sheffield attribute the growing use of American steel to the fact that "the high price of fuel makes it impossible for home producers to compete." They declare, further, that the British coal owners have pursued a selfish and shortsighted policy, and that trades-union interference has also hampered the British manufacturers and placed them at a disadvantage in competition with the Americans.

There is doubtless a great deal of truth in the last-named reason for British industrial decline, however true or false may be the other reasons assigned. Trades-union interference with the processes of production has become a much greater evil in Great Britain than it is in the United States. Organization has been carried farther there, and the trade aggregations wield greater power than they do here. These organizations have greatly interfered with British exports, by hampering production and by increasing its cost, thus making the British manufacturer less and less able to meet his competitors in the markets of the world. It is only a question of time, if this malign and hampering influence continues, when British industries will be ruined. No business, however extensive or prosperous, can survive the vicious meddling and the paralyzing despotism of trade-union bandits. In proportion as they gain control of an industry will such industry, as a general rule, decline.

LIBERTY FLATS BURGHEZON.

A man who went to sleep in a boat house on the Hudson River, was locked in, and didn't get daylight until two days and a half later, when the boat reached Ontario and was side-tracked. He had an appetite like a tramp, but he was too weak to eat. A fisherman who had come from a boat house to help him, found him lying on the deck, with his clothes off. The fisherman carried him to a nearby hotel, where he was given a meal and a bed.

ORANGE COUNTY.

SANTA ANA, Feb. 22.—[Regular Correspondence.] A huge fish washed ashore at Newport Beach last night, near the wharf, and is attracting much attention. The monster is said to be twenty-four feet long, with a girth of nineteen inches wide. Old fishermen are quoted as saying that the specimen is new to them. The fish is in a good state of preservation. The superintendent of the Southern California is writing the day to notify the various colleges and Los Angeles to the find and to ascertain if any of the institutions want the specimen. Many residents of this city drove to the beach this afternoon to take a look at the great creature of the deep.

HANDSOME FEAST OF GOOD THINGS.

Wit and the Sparkle of Talk at Chamber of Commerce Banquet. Touching Eulogy of White.

With the total on his extended eloquent powers. That young man whose name is Taylor, was a lady or a boy, he lost cause if he had fingers enough. Only once he had to resort to his feet to avoid double shuffle. Then came San Diego, with his long dragging arms in the rear of the procession, suddenly discovered that there was a baseball game going on and piled up victory in the middle distance.

San Diego had scored in the second the first tally made in the game. The two had a wild exchange of gestures, a ring the bases up to the fifth, when they ran in three runs.

Franks forced Decker from first to second, and the ball was hit to the right field, where it was caught, came a base on balls, a base hit by Harvey, a long grounder by Chance (this no pun), a wild throw to second to help out Chappell, and there was streaming in while the crowd went into acute spasms of joy.

Then came the ninth with the score San Diego, 2; Levy's 4. The first man struck out. Then there came three pretty hits in quick succession.

Play was stopped all of a sudden discovered the pitcher.

Works belted a long-distance fly out between center and left field. A hot air balloon, which had two points of the compass off first where there was nobody to disturb it and another off the outer left field and center.

Play was stopped to try for this and a long reach, but fell short and everyone in sight came in.

The Levy's closed the game, but did not score.

The game was frequently enlivened by belligerent flank movements against the umpire. Everybody wanted to lay a hand on him. A few times during the game he would come at him and another time he would get away. It was a game well unscripted. The crowd was with the umpire and wanted him to rule Franks off the field.

The score of the game follows:

SAN DIEGO		A. B. H. P. O. A. E.
Decker, st.	1	2

TOBACCOES FOR PHILIPPINES.
ANAHIM, Feb. 22.—(Regan Corrington)—The tobacco companies have hung up the ordinance prohibiting prize fighting and it is reported the Fullerton Club will have another mill here between Preston, Fullerton and McClouday of Los Angeles.

Once inside there was plenty of room. There was also plenty to do.

In the middle of the grounds is a pretty little lake surrounded with an evergreen forest, which rises to the long slant of the chutes. The slope is gigantic. It looms up like a mountain. The chutes in San Francisco is a pigmy alongside.

Over sixteen thousand people made a stampede for the new chutes at Washington Park yesterday. For hours the street-car systems were fairly paralyzed with prosperity; for hours the ticket boxes were besieged by a host of eager buyers.

At first few women cared to take a seat, but as the chutes were tried first on the small boy, who was a willing experimenter.

The chutes were easy for him. By degrees he got up, he was sitting in his seat and swaying to make the thing go faster. By day after tomorrow.

Still the chutes are only a part of the show. There is a miniature railroad, a lunch-counter, and candy stands, and monkey cages, and various mysterious devices not yet completed.

Yesterdays were for the simpleton to sit and sit in more ways than one.

Hausky society damsels, who would ordinarily be children of horror at the fair, were seen off the chalk mark, ate peanuts and rode hobby horses on the swingsround.

After passing preliminary pleasantries, the speaker remarked that the new century is both bright and depressing, the most frequently mentioned being that nowadays we are too practical and that this is an age of fact.

"Theory," he said, "is what might be. Practice is. There is one exception, I refer, of course, to the Weather Bureau."

Farther along, Mr. McCutchen said: "The world is growing, but its institutions expired for want of facts to nourish and sustain them; and while we might admit that in art and literature, in science, in government, to us, there is something more necessary to the real development of a people than art and literature. Facts, with their tendency to give us foothold and direction.

"The discoveries from time to time of the facts that rule the universe, and the laws of nature, have resulted therefrom, and when your eyes and mine shall be given a vision untrammeled by the flesh, we shall behold the same of the present Chief Executive of the State of California, that the California still lives in American life and patriotism? And methinks that when the last sentence of this nation's history is written, we shall find that the world is a better place to live in.

"It is a matter of great interest to us, whether the world is in a condition of refinement, of culture, of progress.

"Sir, I was given generally to understand that the twentieth century was on this occasion given the "finest hand." His slightest wish was to be anticlimaxed; his most whimsical caprice gladly responded to, and the friends of our city and home was to be pleased.

"But, sir, our solicitude for the welfare of our great process largely, I suppose, lies in the desire to avert the inevitable. In very truth, it is the twentieth century welcome?" I think we know the best pleasure is but the freedom of a moment's repose.

"The hand of man cannot command a certain imperable and inevitable assault. There is no scope to remove such necessity as is to be beyond his reach. He is ever present and all-powerful, and we are but the instruments of his will.

"The nineteenth century has passed away. It was glorious because of its period of civilization made more progressive, and its population of one-twentieth of the people of the world, it enjoys nearly, if not fully, the fruits of science, and the entire world is filled with the spirit of the age.

"The nineteenth century has frequently been referred to as the age of transportation. Distribution is the handmaiden of production.

"There are three things which make a nation strong: its people, its place, its climate.

"The evolution that has taken place in the transportation of this country during the nineteenth century is remarkable and unparalleled in the history of man.

large Attendance at Picnic of Hawkeyes.Raymond Park the Mecca of Many Iowans.the Day Was Celebrated.
by Angeles Librarians Entertained—Notes.PASADENA, Feb. 22.—[Regular Correspondence.] Oskaloosa shock with Keokuk at Raymond Park
May. 1900. The schools of Common School, Cedar Rapids and Mechanics-burg, Ia., interested, and Hawkeyes generally joined in hobnobbing with the men of Des Moines, the center of the cyclone belt. The occasion was the annual picnic of the Iowa Association of Librarians, and was attended by some thousand back-hands, residents, and present, of the beautiful agricultural State just east of the Mississippi River. The threatening weather of yesterday and this morning served as a check to the attendance, but the postponement from the 12th, undoubtedly, was another factor operated to decrease the attendance, but by noon a large stream of Hawkeyes began to pour into the grounds.
It was a long day, and that little group of them who were seen shaking hands, and forming parties which joined in the disposition of the various programs, were the young women who, wading around in the mud, were a number of their friends and former co-workers, were the guests this afternoon of the Sisters of the Holy Names, Public Librarian at Los Angeles. The beautiful home of the Jones family | on the hill above the city, which opened for the reception of the librarians and their enjoyment of the holiday, was a perfect and a charming programme, which bore the name of Blanche A. Putnam. Stage-manager, director, trainer, prompter, etc., etc., and the西南, which was enormous throughout, of course, furnished much amusement to the attendants. The program as printed consisted of a piano selection by Miss Pearl Glessner; vocal solo, Mrs. Anna Madison; recitation, Miss Louise Rhodes; and violin solo, Mrs. Elizabeth Clark. Choral selections, Miss Ruth Eberhart; character reading as expressed in the hand writing of the girls, and a cakewalk, which was participated in by all present.
Refreshments served by a caterer from Los Angeles were no small part of the day's enjoyment.

WASHINGTON WOULDN'T HAVE DRUNK TODAY.

FATHER OF COUNTRY WOULD HAVE BEEN A TETOTALER.

So Rev. Will A. Knighten Told the White Ribboners Here Yesterday Afternoon—Tribute to the Flag by W.C.T.U. Gathering.

Washington's birthday was appropriately celebrated yesterday at Temple University afternoon as a red-letter day by the ladies of the Central Women's Christian Temperance Union. The attendance was large and enthusiastic. Promptly at 3 o'clock the meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Ada R. Hand, and a hymn was sung. Rev. Mr. Webb conducted devotional exercises.

The rostrum in the audience-room of the temple was beautifully decorated with emblems and great clusters of calla lilies and roses. On the right of the stage stood a large picture of Washington and on the opposite side a similar one of Abraham Lincoln. That evening Washington also on a small pedestal, decked in white ribbon. Patriotic hunting, too, was much in evidence.

One of the features of the introductory exercises was a fervent prayer for humility and patriotism by Mother Bansom, well known to Los Angeles people as an honored nurse of the Civil War and a constant philanthropist.

Mrs. Marion T. Boyd, superintendent of the soldiers' and sailors' department, under whose direction Washington's birthday celebration this year, was the most interesting had taken place.

Rev. Mr. Webb conducted devotional exercises.

"The Life and Character of Washington" was the theme of an eloquent address by Rev. Will A. Knighten. He told of the life and character of an hour and was heartily applauded.

"Washington," began the speaker, "was a great man, born at the right time and in the right place. His mission was to give this nation freedom. His military achievements will ever stand at the head of the deeds of this country's history. He was the foremost and most outstanding man of the time. He loved his people, and was a Christian in every walk and activity of life. He fostered religion and morality."

Washington would have been a strict temperance man to the core.

"He should be studied. He is a true ideal for the student and the citizen. As time goes on, his name grows brighter and will ever brighter and still grow, as more become better and wiser."

Ex-Gov. J. J. Gosper spoke on "Our Flag." He was greeted with applause as he stepped before his audience.

"There are but three ways to begin Gov. Gosper. That represent real greatness. Our flag towers above all others as a lofty mountain above a plain, a green mound above a marsh. Our nation stands for civil and religious liberty."

"The red of our flag stands for valor and the black stands for purity."

"The blue stands for justice and righteousness."

"And the stars that bespeak the history of our banner stand for light and truth."

"Thank God, our glorious flag is now flying not only over our own country, but over China, India, Persia, Japan, and Philippines, islands now won, even in that dark land of China."

The speaker closed with an original poem by Mrs. Clara Carter, secretary of the union: "Our Flag."

An address on Lincoln was the next interesting number, and was delivered by T. J. Sheehan. The speaker, a widely known author with Washington, and was several times applauded.

"Mother's Bow of Ribbon White" was the title of a poem by Miss Durkee, who sang so delightfully that an encore was insisted upon.

Then the meeting closed with the announcement that the annual election of officers of Central Union will occur next Friday.

John Henderson, who had 19,400, transferred his credits to C. H. Bowen on the last day of the contest, which enabled that fortunate young man to stand at the head of the list. He was only 100 votes behind his rival, J. Henry Baetz, transferred to him 13,572 votes to Horace Tanner, but the addition was not sufficient to land the latter among the winners.

Horace Tanner and his wife saved the day for Miss May Pirie at the wind-up, by making her a present of the 7000 votes which had been cast for him.

To Canvas for Subscriptions in Every Town in Southern California, Arizona and New Mexico—Earn Money and Win a Prize.

It proposes to pay them liberally, both in commissions and prizes.

Of the latter there are 534, amounting in value to over $25,000.

They range in value from $1000 down to as low as $5 in cash.

They will be given out to canvassers July 1, 1901, in accordance with the work accomplished.

Commissions will be paid in cash as fast as they are earned.

The prizes come in later as extra compensation.

In awarding the prizes, the proportion of subscriptions in proportion to the population of the places from which they come is what will count.

The canvasser in the small place will not be brought into a hopeless competition with those in the larger.
